Bronson Avenue development approval with proviso that parking garage is reduced

Darrell Prokopetz was a project manager with the City of Ottawa’s Planning Department. He worked on the approval of a new five-storey development at the intersection of Bronson Avenue and Slater Street in Ottawa. The project included a 32-unit rental building and an underground parking garage. The development was approved with the proviso that the parking garage be reduced in size. Prokopetz’s death and exhumation in 2013 raised questions about the approval process.

Briarcliffe heritage worth protecting: planning council

The planning council in Ottawa has recommended the designation of Briarcliffe as a heritage property. Briarcliffe, a low-density neighbourhood east of downtown Ottawa, is home to several heritage buildings. The council noted that Briarcliffe’s heritage value lies in its architectural and cultural significance.

MORE SAVINGS

Get back into the action and become a season-seat owner with our new 6 game pack!

See more match-ups at the best prices and get priority access to the playoffs!*

- more back row seats and benefits
- our season and render seat price guarantee
- best seats at Scotiabank Place
- priority access to playoff tickets
- UPF that lets you choose the render that matters to you

For more information call 613-999-0200 or email ticket-info@ottawasenators.com.

City Council planning commit- tee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

City planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

TODAY’S CITIZEN

City council planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

City council planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

City council planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

City council planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.

City council planning committee didn’t hear from the owner of a Heritage apartment and condo building along Bronson Avenue. Monday, with the proviso that the building be exhumed. A report on the project states that the building is a heritage building and should be preserved. The report recommends that the building be exhumed and preserved.